Costa Blanca South, Torrevieja (Town)

This fully furnished, three-bedroom, two-bathroom beachfront apartment on La Mata Beach perfectly embodies the dream of a beachfront home: opening your front door, taking a few steps, and finding yourself face-to-face with the sand and the Mediterranean Sea. Living here means the sea is not just a view, but an integral part of daily life, the atmosphere, the sounds, and the light streaming through the windows. This property is designed for those who want their home to be intimately connected to the beach, the mild climate, and the Mediterranean lifestyle, without sacrificing the comfort and space of a spacious apartment. From the moment you step inside, the most striking feature is the direct connection to the sea. Simply looking out the window or stepping onto the terrace and gazing at the horizon, the endless blue, and the coastline creates a profound sense of tranquility that is difficult to describe. Each day can begin with the sound of the waves and the gentle breeze entering the apartment, and end with the sight of the sunset painting the sky in shades of orange and pink. For those who appreciate views and surroundings, this apartment is more than just a home; it's a privileged setting overlooking one of the most beautiful landscapes in the area. The fact that it's being sold furnished adds an enormous level of convenience. More than a purchase, it feels like stepping directly into a new life by the sea. There's no need to worry about choosing furniture, a major move, or spending months preparing the property: everything is ready for you to arrive with your suitcases and start enjoying it. This makes it especially appealing both for those who want a second home for immediate occupancy and for those who decide to take the plunge and relocate to La Mata as their permanent residence, seeking a more peaceful lifestyle connected with nature. As a three-bedroom apartment, the space feels generous and flexible. There's room for a whole family, for frequently hosting guests, or for those who wish to combine living and working remotely without sacrificing separate sleeping areas. Each bedroom can take on a different role: the master bedroom as a cozy suite facing the sea, a second bedroom as a room for children or frequent guests, and a third that can become an office, playroom, study area, or even a creative corner for hobbies. This versatility allows the home to adapt to different stages of life without feeling small or cramped. The two bathrooms provide added comfort that is very noticeable in daily life, especially when the home is full during holidays or weekends. They eliminate waiting in the mornings, facilitate cohabitation, and provide privacy, something especially valued when hosting family and friends who come to enjoy the beach. This layout allows everyone to have their own rhythm and space, making the experience of sharing the home much more comfortable. In an apartment with these characteristics, having two bathrooms reinforces its character as a functional family home. The living room becomes the social heart of the apartment, the place where the interior and exterior merge thanks to the constant presence of the sea. It's easy to imagine a comfortable sofa facing the windows, a dining table where you can share meals overlooking the water, and décor that emphasizes light tones, brightness, and nautical details. This room invites both moments of calm—reading, watching a movie, listening to music—and long evenings spent with friends and family, with the sound of the waves as a soundtrack. The living room isn't just a sitting room; it's a large window onto the Mediterranean.
